

Call for Proposals

Tedder Family Doctoral Fellowships in the Humanities (2020-2021)

Rothman Doctoral Fellowships in the Humanities (2020-2021)

Deadline: Friday, January 17, 2020

GUIDELINES

A. Grant Description

The Center for the Humanities and the Public Sphere, with the support of the Tedder Family Endowed Research Award in the Humanities and the Robert and Margaret Rothman Endowment in the Humanities, offers a funding competition for UF doctoral candidates working on humanities dissertations. This fellowship may be used to cover research expenses, including but not exclusively travel expenses, related to the dissertation project. Successful applicants will be called Tedder Family or Rothman Doctoral Fellows in the Humanities. Work on projects with interdisciplinary appeal is particularly encouraged.

The Tedder Family and Rothman Doctoral Fellowships in the Humanities will be awarded to the awardee's degree-granting department as a lump-sum payment of $2,000 to be used in Summer or Fall 2020 or Spring 2021 in the form of reimbursement for travel, research expenses, or salary. The Center expects to be able to fund six awards at this time (two Tedder Family Doctoral Fellowships in the Humanities and four Rothman Doctoral Fellowships in the Humanities).

B. Eligibility

UF doctoral candidates working on humanities topics who have passed their qualifying exams by the application deadline are eligible. CHPS uses a definition of the humanities adapted from the National Foundation on the Arts and the Humanities Act of 1965 as the basis for determining the eligibility of proposed projects. Tedder Family or Rothman Doctoral Fellows are not eligible to apply again in subsequent years.

Priority will be given to applicants who have not already received significant funding for this purpose from other sources, whether internal or external to UF.

C. Activities

Fellowships may be used towards research and research-related travel costs. Travel exclusively for conferences will not be funded. Those students who do not need to travel or purchase other resources may apply for the award to be paid as salary, in which case it will be awarded as a scholarship. This award does not provide a graduate assistantship or a tuition waiver.

D. Deliverables

Tedder Family and Rothman Doctoral Fellows will be asked to provide proof of submission of an external grant application (including possibly postdoctoral fellowships) and to deliver a public presentation on their research in the interdisciplinary Synergies speaker series at the Humanities Center within a year of receiving the award. Tedder Family and Rothman Doctoral Fellows will also be highlighted on the Humanities Center Website.

PROPOSAL ASSISTANCE

Applicants are advised to write in clear, intelligible prose for the Center's Advisory Board, which is multi-disciplinary and composed of faculty members from across the humanities. Proposals should include reference to the major concepts, theories, and methods in the applicant's research discipline(s), and applicants should also specify why this funding will be critical to successful completion of the dissertation or final project in the humanities. Applicants should refer to the training necessary to their project, including reference to language fluency sufficient to complete the project when appropriate. The narrative should make explicit the applicant's expectations for the research. Finally, applicants are encouraged to think broadly about how their proposed research advances large questions and areas of inquiry across the humanities disciplines writ large. For more information on writing a fellowship application, see the Center for the Humanities and the Public Sphere's Quick Humanities Grant Writing Tips, the "Writing Graduate Fellowship Proposals in the Humanities" guide created by Dr. Mickey Schaefer in the UF University Writing Program, and the Center's yearly humanities grant-writing series of events and workshops.

We invite applicants to write to the Assistant Director for Graduate Engagement, Dr. Kristen Galvin, at kgalvin@ufl.edu in advance with queries about the grant process or to review a draft proposal. All drafts must be submitted no later than a week prior to the grant deadline.
